

Take Part in the NEJM Resident 360 QI Challenge

Calling all residents...enter our online poster challenge today!

The NEJM Resident 360 QI Challenge provides a venue for residents to share their quality improvement (QI) projects with a global audience and gain valuable feedback, while inspiring new ideas for future projects. Compete for prizes, including subscriptions to the New England Journal of Medicine and NEJM Knowledge+, and a chance to have your project featured on the NEJM Resident 360 and NEJM Catalyst websites!

HOW TO ENTER

1. Register your team beginning February 6, 2020, at resident360.nejm.org/groups/qi-challenge
2. Submit your abstract March 1–31, 2020,* to residentchallenge@nejm.org
3. Create a poster by May 15, 2020, if abstract is accepted

Our team will review and select qualifying abstracts. If your abstract qualifies, you will be asked to submit a poster. Posters will be published on the QI Challenge page on NEJM Resident 360 for review and comment by the community. Ten top finalists will be selected on June 1, 2020, and will receive comments from our panel of expert judges. The top three winners will be announced on June 15, 2020. Visit the QI Challenge page for details: resident360.nejm.org/groups/qi-challenge.

*Submissions close after the first 100 approved abstracts are accepted or by March 31, 2020, at 3:00 PM ET, whichever comes first.

QUALIFICATIONS

- All team members must be residents (or were residents during the time the QI project was completed).
- Projects must be based on quality improvement and carried out and completed within the past two years (January 1, 2018–January 31, 2020).
- Projects should demonstrate good engagement with the QI process and utilization of established QI research techniques to make changes that will lead to better patient outcomes and system performance.
